

Corporate Access Disclaimer

By registering for the scheduled corporate access event, you acknowledge and agree to the following terms and conditions:

The speakers to be presented are offered to provide publicly available market color regarding their respective industries. The opinions of the speakers are their own and do not reflect the views of Stuart Frankel & Co., Inc. (“STF”). STF offers speakers for informational purposes. It has no control over the content of any presentation and any participant should make its own analysis and draw its own conclusions as to any possible investment decisions which might be drawn from the presentation. STF has made no independent inquiry or analysis of the content of the presentation and made no inquiry into the investment goals of any attendee. It offers no investment advice in connection therewith, including but not limited to the advisability of the purchase sale or hold of any security or the suitability of any investment for an attendee. Please note that STF also makes no independent inquiry regarding these speakers and are relying solely upon their level of employment for our belief that they possess the training and sophistication necessary to understand any regulatory constraints on the content of their presentations. We make no representations regarding the content of their presentations, including but not limited to accuracy, the suitability of any investment, market implications or the ability to act on the information conveyed.